Horrible State of Affairs.

The following letter published in the Victoria Chronicle, is a fine sample of what an Englishman can accomplish when he makes authority [illegible]. The only glimpse of truth in the whole is the simple statement that a Vigilance Committee exists at Walla Walla. Either the credulity of some John Bull has been excessively imposed upon or [illegible] of that genus has gone mad on the [illegible] to impose on the credulity of others. We are particularly surprised that the Chronicle should swallow the bait. It should have been accompanied by the intimation that Baron Munchausen [illegible] was on his travels and engaged as a correspondent. The simple fact is that "J. B." has changed his signature to "Vidocq," and the following is the result. If he could change his red head to a less fiery hue and borrow for a while somebody else's clothes and character, he might pass for a gentleman and perhaps learn to tell the truth.

PORTLAND, April 23, 1865.

EDITORS DAILY CHRONICLE: As early as the fall of 1862 I happened to be in Olympia, and there, from some members of the Washington Territory Legislature from Walla Walla, I first heard of the intended organization of a Vigilance Committee that would not confine its actions to one place in particular but was intended to make a clean sweep from the shores of the Pacific coast to the base of the Rocky Mountains, and from present indications I think the prophecy is to be fulfilled.

ITS CAUSE.

It is well known that for the past 10 years that the wilds of Oregon, Washington and Idaho Territories have been a safe asylum for refugees from justice and their number has quadrupled since the mineral discoveries of the past four years. The power of the civil authorities being incapable of meting out justice to the guilty, was consequently held at defiance, which so emboldened the desperadoes that they made their incursions into towns and hamlets in broad daylight in utter defiance of all law and order and in the presence of panic stricken citizens committed murder and robbery. These acts at last goaded the people to desperation and there was no other alternative but to take matters into their own hands. Consequently, since the fall of 1862 the Vigilants kept increasing in numbers until they thought themselves sufficiently powerful to cope with the organized bands of horse thieves, road agents, &c., and last week was the commencement of their terrible work of blood to the number of 40 or more victims at Walla Walla.

THEIR MODE OF OPERATION.

I cannot state the exact number of its members but from secret information I learn that they are very numerous at Walla Walla. They have an Executive Council with a temporary head quarters at present and members in every town. They have a black list which contains a description and names of at least 200 persons, accused of various offences, and wherever they find one of them, in less than ten minutes his corpse is dangling in the air. There is no possible escape when they once get sight of a victim, as the following illustrates. Three unfortunates who attempted to make their escape from Walla Walla and succeeded in getting as far as Umatilla, just as the boat was leaving the wharf, were disarmed and dragged ashore and strangled in less time than it takes to write this. The charges against them were, one for stealing a pipe, one for being in the employ of a man that drove a band of horses across the country to Cariboo, three years ago, and the third for simply being in their company. Their detectives are at this moment all over the country, spotting and finding new victims. If they find a man who is likely to offer any resistance they will wait until the dead hour of midnight when the unfortunate man is in his bed, then go to his apartment and drag him undressed to the nearest tree and, without the slightest semblance of trial or hearing launch him into eternity, without giving him time to make his peace with God. At this time there is more going on here in Portland than the authorities are aware of. I see the OREGONIAN is either in ignorance or cares not to mention the present state of things. I was given to understand, no later than yesterday that it would be best that I should not know too much about Vigilants and from the source it came from I am satisfied my informant is a sworn member. However, I have very good grounds for stating that I would not be disappointed to see lively times here before long.

Last Thursday Governor Gibbs sent a secret dispatch to the commandant at Fort Vancouver, and the result was the immediate increase of the guard at the arsenal to treble its former force. I do not think that the Vigilants would undertake to seize the arsenal, as that would bring them in actual collision with the troops. But I do think that they will depend more on stratagem to further their design. If they do commence, it will be quick work—no matter what the consequences may be. They will, probably, form their plans, and in the gray of the morning will drag their victims from places of repose and fancied security, and finish their hellish repast before the military arrives from Vancouver—while they will, undoubtedly, at the first symptoms of an outbreak and by the time troops arrive the Vigilants can disband again without coming into collision, and what can be done? True, they can be arrested, but unless tried by a military commission it will only be a repetition of the San Francisco scenes—trials and appeals from court to court until justice is tired out.

If the Vigilance Committee would confine their operations to desperadoes and those who deserve capital punishment they would benefit the country, but the idea of hanging a man for a trifling offence committed three or four years ago, is monstrous. It matters not whether the poor victim has settled down and reformed—no, it is sufficient for them to hear that he was once guilty—and hang he must. But it remains to be seen whether the Government will look calmly on and allow a horde of blood thirsty devils under the name of a Vigilance Committee to feast and gloat themselves on human blood; or is it better to have it recorded that the world and generations to come may know that the free Government of the United States countenanced the diabolical and heart sickening scenes enacted by Vigilance Committees.

VIDOCQ.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR OF WASHINGTON TERRITORY.—The Nation mourns a Patriot gone. The murder of ABRAHAM LINCOLN, late President of the United States, by the assassin's hand, was a direct blow, not only at the head of the Nation but at each individual citizen. He who was selected by the people to rule over them has been stricken down in the faithful performance of his weighty trust. What so grievous a dispensation of the Almighty may portend we finite creatures may little know, but may hope that the [illegible] of all good [illegible] much in store [illegible] and it is meet and proper we should wait upon Him, that we should publicly acknowledge His almighty power [illegible] His omniscient [illegible] and express our firm reliance upon His [illegible]. In view of these duties at such a period and as a fitting testimonial that we mutually join in the general grief which pervades the Nation at this dire National calamity, I, Elwood Evans, Acting Governor of the Territory of Washington, have set apart Thursday, the 11th day of May, 1865, as a day of humiliation and prayer, and earnestly invoke its due and general observance throughout the Territory.

[L. S.] In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the Territory of Washington to be affixed. Done at Olympia this 19th day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty five, and of the Independence of the United States of America the eighty ninth.

ELWOOD EVANS.

The Charleston Courier of March 1 says: The recruiting office in Charleston [illegible]. The colored men are flocking to the support of the United States flag by the dozen, and the several companies are formed in a single day and a full regiment comes [illegible] in a week.

[illegible] BATTLES.—It has been decided that the 1st Maine Cavalry is entitled to bear the names of thirty nine battles on its regimental standard, which is eight more than can be claimed by any other cavalry regiment in the Army of the Potomac.

SATURDAY MORNING, MAY 6, 1865.

The State of Oregon

A few years ago [illegible] far removed from the centers of trade [illegible] developed, an [illegible] for its products. [illegible] and the opening of the rich mineral fields of Idaho to the world, has afforded the producers of Oregon an ample market for their surplus, the [illegible] that our farmers have [illegible] fortunes of [illegible] instead of remaining to secure the [illegible] awarded his labors at home. In every respect this State offers to the emigrant the best home to be found upon the Pacific coast. For salubrity of climate, the valleys that lie between the coast and Cascade Ranges have no equals. Their extent is [illegible] when they shall be settled and cultivated by a [illegible] population to build up a State of [illegible] and the [illegible] progress we are making in agriculture and manufactures [illegible] wealth and importance in a [illegible] degree.

From every important point of the Willamette Valley as well as from the Umpqua and Rogue river valleys, [illegible] are [illegible] or are in progress of construction to enable the producer to take his surplus of produce more directly to the great mining regions of the eastward. The enterprise of capitalists has improved the means of travel and transit for freight on the great river until it has become a national highway, whose commerce and travel is but commencing and in its future development is sure to make our State one of the most enterprising and wealthy on the continent.

Those who have laughed at the rains of the Willamette in years past have learned to appreciate them as insuring to us the full harvests of each succeeding summer and autumn. At present the whole Pacific coast is paying a heavy tribute to the rains of one year ago, in the enhanced price of all our products, or rather we would say, that while the drought of 1864 left California barren and parched, the harvests of Oregon were as abundant as ever and have sufficed in a great measure to supply the deficiencies of that State.

Eastward we have a great extent of country only in part developed. The valleys of Grand Ronde and Powder river, in the midst of an extensive mineral region have been already filled by an overflow of population from the East. No more favorable country can be found for agricultural and grazing purposes. The new counties organized east of the Cascade mountains, will soon have their full share of wealth, for while the valleys teem with rich harvests, the mountains are no less rich in placers of gold and veins of ore. The south eastern portion of the State is entirely undeveloped. Here is a large extent of mineral and agricultural land, inviting the settler and miner to come to it, and only requiring to be rid of the Indian tribes that infest that section, to soon become valuable and productive to the State. In our boundaries we have every variety of climate ranging from the temperate regions on the southern border—much resembling that of California—to the wintry mining regions, where the mountains are blockaded with snow until late in the Spring. Everywhere the church and the school house are springing up, indicating that the civilization of our people keeps pace with every other improvement, and promising that the future shall see our State peopled by a virtuous and intelligent community, that shall cause the shores of the Western Ocean to vie in all respects with the most favored nations of the East. We must labor here to produce wealth. There is no land where the rewards of industry are surer, few where the expenses of a family are less easily met, and independence so easily acquired. No State offers a greater variety of soil, climate and occupation. Our mountain streams invite the manufacturer, and already the working looms have become a source of wealth which is only the prelude to the whirr of a thousand spindles where one is now heard. There is no branch of industry that refuses to reward development here, and as step by step we advance in every stage of agriculture and manufactures, the result but more plainly shows the facility with which we can accomplish still greater improvement.

From Victoria and British Columbia.—By files of Victoria papers kindly furnished us by the officers of the George S. Wright, propeller, which arrived from that place Thursday evening, we gather the following items:

A contract for building a light house to be placed at the mouth of the river Fraser river had been awarded to Messrs. Button & Cook of Victoria.

The total custom receipts at Victoria for the week ending April 22d, was £3,468 or about sixteen thousand dollars.

The contractors on the Hope Similkameen Road after completing 26 miles, have given up the enterprise.

There is said to be a very rich gold and silver bearing ledge at Cherry creek, in British Columbia, and a tunnel has been run in five hundred feet and thirty thousand dollars expended in developing the ledge.

A Leech River correspondent of the Colonist says that a great deal of improvement has taken place there since last fall, and describes Kennedy Flat as a thriving town.

Castle Carey has been purchased by Gov. Kennedy of Vancouver Island, as a Government House, cost $19,000.

Mr. Conway's party were at work making due progress in the work of constructing the telegraph line up Fraser river and through British Columbia.

From Idaho City.—The Idaho World of late date has come to hand with items as follows:

Many teams are said to be on the road from the Columbia river to Idaho. Notwithstanding the state of the roads, the spring business has already commenced.

A pack train of sixteen animals had left Virginia City for Boise. Flour was quoted at $60 per cent. The toll of Richmond was duly celebrated by the towns in the Basin. The fine weather was duly appreciated and all in [illegible] were [illegible] the snow [illegible]

Proceedings at [illegible]—A meeting was held at [illegible] on the reception of the news of [illegible] and [illegible] or shown to his memory. Persons of all parties took part in the proceedings and Sunday, April 30 was devoted to suitable exercises. The proceedings in full have been sent us for publication, but we have not room to publish them and the many similar accounts forwarded to us.

New York Gold Quotations [illegible]

[illegible] decided that Front street [illegible] the past [illegible] and manner to get [illegible] property holders [illegible] daily ordered that [illegible] stone and [illegible] that when [illegible] such property [illegible] be preferred [illegible] opinion on the [illegible] already expressed [illegible] with the [illegible] before him, and [illegible] the fancy of the [illegible] majority [illegible] been properly [illegible] would have [illegible] be likely [illegible] That such a result [illegible] Common Council [illegible] have [illegible] with the skill and [illegible] their qualities [illegible] excavation and [illegible] foundation, they will [illegible] constant and [illegible] though properly laid, they [illegible] as any other [illegible] called upon [illegible] investigation [illegible] be brought [illegible] the San Francisco [illegible] of the Nicholson [illegible] is a portion of [illegible].

The sample of Nicholson [illegible] Montgomery street, between [illegible] is attracting a good deal [illegible] and a brief account [illegible] together with the [illegible] which it claims [illegible] hitherto invented, [illegible].

THE CONSTRUCTION.

The pavement is [illegible] smooth flooring of [illegible] planks [illegible] both sides [illegible] gravel. Second [illegible] length usually [illegible] set endwise [illegible] rows are separated [illegible] two or three [illegible] the blocks and [illegible] of the surface [illegible] gravel or broken stone, mixed [illegible] coal-tar and pitch [illegible] between the rows of blocks [illegible] a thin covering [illegible] the surface of the pavement [illegible] the pitch and tar prevents the [illegible] between the blocks [illegible] and the blocks standing on end, with the [illegible] exposed to friction, wear [illegible].

MERITS OF THE PAVEMENT.

The first grand requisite for street pavements, after [illegible] equal, is its durability. [illegible] pavement in this regard has been [illegible] in Chicago and other western cities [illegible] has been tried. The [illegible] merits is proved [illegible] that it is esteemed [illegible] the best pavement [illegible] here. We have been laying [illegible] three years, and laid at present [illegible] paved with it, [illegible] feeling in its favor. The question [illegible] economy and [illegible] streets paved with it, has been [illegible] in its favor, and the pavement is now [illegible] here that when the subject of paving a street [illegible] agitated, the Nicholson pavement [illegible] The best testimony I can offer [illegible] that after it had been [illegible].

[illegible] to even a hope of making them durable [illegible] we have heard raised to it, is that a flood [illegible] of the summer of 1862 might float or break it, and that the extremes of dampness and heat incident [illegible] would rot it and by causing the wood to [illegible] and swell, might in time cause it to [illegible] and even proportions. Aside from the fact that a [illegible] which covers Front street is [illegible] the sun three years ago [illegible] the only one in [illegible] of our oldest inhabitants [illegible] once again in a quarter of a century, it is the unanimous opinion of those who have seen it in process of construction after years of wear, that this pavement would [illegible] be seriously injured by a flood ever greater [illegible] before. It is [illegible] of the water lifting it, and if after the recession [illegible] it might be left uneven and needing repairs, [illegible] certain that the same result would attend the [illegible] macadam, which, though they would [illegible] would be sure to sink in the softened earth at the first [illegible] of a heavy load. The liability to damage by [illegible] swelling, [illegible] damaged as the planking in our streets is, [illegible] of those causes. It has worn [illegible] to the [illegible] of its capability and shown no weakness that [illegible] to the stepping, and it is not fair to suppose [illegible] Nicholson would be more vulnerable. [illegible] the [illegible] owners of Front street property carefully consider this subject and see if the Common Council in their [illegible] mistaken effort to comply with the general [illegible] have not taken steps to inflict a burdensome [illegible] pavement upon them to the exclusion [illegible] that will be both cheap and durable, an ornament [illegible] of pride to the whole city.

Council Proceedings.—The Council was organized by electing Mr Lownsdale temporary clerk, Mr. Voter being absent. Present: Messrs. Benson, Cook, Frazar, Gilmore, Lonsdale and Starr. Mayor Failing presided. The minutes were read and approved.

A remonstrance signed by Wm. Gray, Robert [illegible] and others, in relation to the proposed change of grade on Fourth street, between Jefferson and Columbia, was read and referred to the [illegible] on Streets.

The Committee on Streets and Public Property [illegible] in favor of paying the bill of D. Wright, [illegible] for building the sewer on Columbia street. The report of the Committee was adopted.

The report of the City Recorder was read. The total amount for the month of April collected and paid to the City Treasurer was $119 50. [illegible] the report was laid upon the table.

On motion, all claims against the city were postponed on account of the Auditor's absence.

An ordinance appropriating $6[illegible] 30 to pay the claim of D. Wright was read the first and second time.

An ordinance providing for the improvement of Front street from C to Harrison, and defining the mode of doing the work was read the first and second time.

On motion, rule 28 was suspended and the ordinance appropriating $6[illegible], was read the third time and passed.

The Auditor was authorized [illegible] to publish Ordinance establishing the width of [illegible] six times in the DAILY OREGONIAN.

The bills of the city [illegible] which had been audited, were taken from the table and warrants ordered drawn against the appropriate funds for the following claims:

Bill of H. L. Hoyt for fees, costs and deputies for the month of April, $105 [illegible]; J. H. M[illegible], fees unpaid in the Recorder's Court for the month of April, $200 20; W. P. Blake and Phillips [illegible], one month's service each, [illegible] policemen, $[illegible].

Mayor Failing gave notice to the Council that unless the Council took the matter in hand [illegible] entered into some arrangement [illegible] [illegible] whom he had authorized [illegible] the accommodation of the Marshal, that they were [illegible] to the city's safety would be discharged. On motion, the matter was referred to the Committee on Health and Police, with instructions to report at the next meeting.

On motion, adjourned.

Appointment of a Consul for the Hawaiian Government.—The bark [illegible], Capt. Williams, which arrived from Honolulu yesterday morning, brought important dispatches from His Hawaiian Majesty, [illegible] the credentials as Consul for [illegible] our fellow townsman, Col. John McCraken, [illegible] Oregon and adjoining Territories, [illegible] flag of the Hawaiian Government was presented [illegible] McCraken, in connection with his credentials of office, [illegible] Hon. A. Holbrook, in the presence of Mayor Failing and others, and after being received with appropriate [illegible] the newly appointed entered upon the discharge of his duties.

Steamer for Portland.—We are informed that the steamer Orizaba is to leave San Francisco [illegible] for this place. She comes in the stead of the [illegible], and on her return she is to go by way of Victoria. On her trip hither from San Francisco, [illegible].

Great Carpet Sale.—We call attention to the advertisement of Oscar Kalisch[illegible] Auctioneer, that [illegible] is positively the last day of [illegible] carpets and fancy dry goods, at the Pioneer [illegible].

Late Papers.—McCormick [illegible] thanks for [illegible] papers. Also Capt. Lewis [illegible] placed us under obligations for the favor of papers from Victoria and the Sandwich Islands.

To Sail.—The brig Augusta, Capt. Trask, will clear for Wampport on Monday morning, and soon after receiving cargo of lumber, will sail for San Francisco.

[illegible] There was an error in our notice of this before [illegible]

Cure Your Cold, Save Your Lungs.
NEWELL'S
PULMONARY SYRUP HAS CURED THOUSANDS!
And it will Cure You!
"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always a reason to fear the consequences, as this shows a weak state of the lungs, and is often the forerunner of Consumption." Buchanan's Domestic Medicine.
STOP THAN COUGHING!
Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined by its intrinsic merits to supersede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but
Pulmonary Syrup!
Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.
WHAT KILLED HIM?

Lincoln's Death—the Falling of the Oak.

[illegible]

A Bull-fight for a Wife.

AN ADVENTURE IN SPAIN.

We were English residents in Malaga, my sweet Alice, her father and myself, when a terrible misfortune happened us. Mr. [illegible], one of his [illegible] estates, was seized [illegible] by the robber chief Moreno, and conveyed to his fastness in the mountains, from whence he demanded a ransom of five thousand reals. I had not a real of the sum in the world. No time was to be lost, the [illegible] bandit had named time and place of negotiation, if Alice's father were not to be [illegible] on the following day. She would be orphaned through my neglect. I sought the British consul at his house. The servant replied, "Mr. Edwards has gone to see the bull fight." To the bull ring I therefore hastened at once, and having purchased a ticket which was to admit me to my part of the amphitheater, elbowed my way through the swarming crowd and entered. I had no eyes for the mass of gray [illegible] apparel or the rows of eager, excited faces, tier above tier, and still less for what was going on in the ring, where a young bull was being goaded to fury by sharp tridents and fluttering flags, a mere prologue to the more thrilling scenes that were to follow. But the crowd baffled me. Such multitudes from the neighboring towns and villages, attracted by the spectacle, had poured into Malaga, that it was only for the ladies, and a favored few of the magistracy and nobles, that seats could be retained. The rest stood so thickly massed together that I soon found that to make out Mr. Edwards was hopeless. Giving up the effort in despair, I turned to depart, but through some mistake, instead of gaining the open air I struck into a long passage leading I knew not whither, though I heard the bellowing of the bulls from the dens where they were shut up. Suddenly, from a sort of crypt, the half open door of which was on my right, came the sound of voices, and I caught these words in Spanish: "If you offer a large reward? Say four thousand reals! Consider gentlemen, four thousand reals for an hour's work!"

My feet seemed rooted to the ground, and I felt my face flush while I listened, as if life depended on my overhearing what followed.

"We shall not find a man, do what we may," said another voice, despondingly; "no one not tired of his life would run the risk, and Caramba! what will the people say? There will be a riot, and our houses made pay for it. Only think what will be the fury of the thousands up yonder when they hear that Manual Zagal cannot perform at all, and that we have no matador to take his place."

"If the idiot had but had sense enough to break his leg after the bull fight instead of before!" said a third speaker, in a whining and querulous tone; "I would sooner pay four, aye, or six thousand reals out of my own pocket, than be the one to tell the people that they are to be disappointed of the cream of the sport. They may sack our houses in revenge, and mischief will surely be done. What can we do? Not a matador worth a straw within leagues, and [illegible] only fit to face the young bulls, and those with the wood on their horns. We shall have to use the demilune, and before the Captain General. What a disgrace!"

I began now to understand more clearly the purport of this discourse. I knew that a celebrated matador named Manuel Zagal had been engaged to come over from Seville, the headquarters of bull fighting, to exhibit his skill in dispatching the infuriated animals that had been previously provoked to fury by their mounted tormentors, the picadors. This man, who was famous for skill and courage, stood so high in his profession that it had not been thought needful to hire any other artist in the same line, and as matadors, like opera singers travel from place to place, as their engagements serve, there was no member of the guild then in Malaga. There was, indeed, an active toreador whose nickname of Chico was well known, but this man, though a favorite with the mob, was more a buffoon than a swordsman, and had neither the dexterity nor the daring which a true matador should possess. When a matador is wounded, or some untoward accident prevents the appearance of one, there is no resource but to end the lives of the bulls by cutting off their legs or ham stringing them by means of a sharp scythe on the end of a pole, called a demilune. But this barbarous expedient seldom fails to irritate the populace, who are displeased, not at the cruelty of the act, but at the absence of the risk of human life that is essential to the excitement of the bull ring.

In this case I could easily divine what had happened. The talented performer from Seville, Senor Manual Zagal, had met with a serious accident, and the authorities were afraid to announce to the people what had happened, aware that a violent outbreak of popular wrath would ensue. As for the speakers, by moving forward a step I could see them. Two were in civil uniform, the alcalde of the city, and a heavy beetle browed man, the corregidor of the police. The third was a supple, deferential personage in black, well dressed in the French style. He was the manager of the shows.

"His excellency has arrived. I hear the trumpets!" said the head of the police, gruffly; "we must go and meet him, or we shall be thought lacking in respect. Pity there is no time to find a substitute, but who, even for four thousand reals, would face our two best bulls, the black Portugese and the brindle Murcean, fiercer than [illegible]"

"Make the reward five thousand reals, and I am your man, noble senores," said I, with sudden resolution, emerging from my hiding place. Had I risen like a theatrical specter, through a trap door, my appearance could not have created greater consternation. The corregidor was the first to recover his equanimity. He knit his heavy brow into a dark frown, and angrily demanded who I might be.

"Henry West, British subject, mate of the ship Tudor, now in port," was my answer, "ready to be your matador to-day, if you will raise the pay to five thousand reals."

An animated discussion then took place. The idea of a sailor, an Englishman, undertaking the difficult and perilous task of bull killing, for the matador, as is well known, is the only person exposed to real danger, seemed absurd. But then it was shrewdly observed by Don Ramon, the alcalde, if I chose to get gored to death it was no concern of theirs, and the catastrophe would at least put the people in good humor. But the worthy magistrate was reluctant to give so much as five thousand reals. If I would accept three thousand, or even four!

But I was firm. Five thousand or nothing were my terms, and as the mob began to get very noisy and impatient, the bargain was struck. An agreement was hastily written and signed by the alcalde, and a check for the money was drawn and entrusted to the master of the shows, to be handed to me when I should have earned it. As I traced my signature on the paper I felt that I was bartering my own life and blood to save Alice's father. That five thousand reals would be his ransom. But I had little time to meditate, for I was hurried off to another room, and there bidden to assume, as quickly as possible, the gay costume of a matador, and in the meantime the magistrates [illegible] their places, and the master of the shows went on the somewhat awkward errand of explaining to the multitude that Manuel Zagal had broken his leg, and that a hero would take his duties on himself.

From the dark little chamber in which I was occupied, clumsily enough, in exchanging my own clothes for the gaudy Andalusian suit which was a necessary adjunct of the character I had assumed, I could now and then catch the sound of the manager's voice, as in [illegible] accents he addressed the enlightened audience of his patrons. At first his speech elicited much noisy disapprobation, but presently laughter and cheers drowned the orator's voice, and when he came back he wiped his forehead with an air of self congratulation. The audience had been restored to good humor. "They had been very [illegible] irritable," the manager told me, as he helped me [illegible] and in dressing, "until he reminded them that, at the worst, they had never seen an Englishman killed, and might look out for a novel entertainment. I told them, St. Martin forgive me, that you were the first toreador in all England, and had come to Spain to challenge our best bull fighters to a contest of

[illegible] the man, and then [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] and [illegible] between his [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

I had no hope. I knew that very few even of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] were willing to accept the perils of the matador trade. I had seen bull fights [illegible] at Seville, at Vigo, and elsewhere, and [illegible] how formidable were the huge animals bred in the lonely pastures of Murcia and Castile expressly for the arena. But I drove away these thoughts, and took a deliberate survey of the amphitheater.

[illegible]

Thackeray used to relate with great glee the following humorous story: An Irish gentleman, well known in town, and from whom the character of the Mulligan was partly drawn, walking in the park with a young friend, received a bow from Dean Stanhope, who was passing by, and said to his friend in a rich brogue, "That's a Dane." "Oh, no," replied the other, "you're mistaken; it's Mr. Stanhope, an Englishman." Upon which the offended Mulligan thundered forth, "'Tis not a Dane of Sweden that I mane, sur, but a Dane of the Church!"

James Hubbell, of Huntington, Connecticut, has built for himself and his wife, and with his own hands, a blue granite monument, eleven feet square at the base and fifty feet in height, with a final top, cut in Chinese style, which he considers second only in New England to the Bunker Hill monument. He has been six years at work upon it, and has set it upon a hill commanding a large range of country, and in sight of twenty steeples.

The Southern Hotel, in St. Louis, now approaching completion, will cost about $850,000, although the contracts were made at the gold standard. The furnishing will require at least $850,000 at the present prices; making a total expenditure for hotel and outfit of $1,700,000.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus, CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs, brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle,
